LES CLINICAL RESOURCE

2026 ALA Conference Supplier Directory

Industry products and educational resources showcased at the ALA Conference

INTRODUCTION

This LES directory brings together curated information, tools, and resources to support clinicians working with people living with lymphoedema and related conditions.

Developed in alignment with current educational themes and areas of clinical need, it is designed to assist clinical reasoning, product selection, and informed decision-making in everyday practice.

The resources included reflect contributions from industry partners alongside evidence-informed practice considerations, supporting clinicians to explore available options and apply learning within their own clinical context.

Whether this is your first ALA Conference or your sixteenth, preparation can help you get the most out of the experience. Taking a small amount of time before you arrive can support focused exploration, meaningful connections, and the capture of ideas you can bring back to your clinical practice.

BEFORE THE CONFERENCE

Reflection prompts to set your focus:

- What clinical challenges am I currently facing? Consider troubleshooting with peers and suppliers. This might be a broad issue (e.g., persistent back-of-hand oedema) or a specific patient case. If relevant, jot down background details and bring a photo if appropriate.
- What skills, knowledge areas, or product information do I want to strengthen?
- What patient outcomes do I want to improve?
- What new research, innovations, or clinical developments am I curious about?

Register for workshops and breakfast sessions

Review the conference program early. Numbers for workshops and breakfast sessions are limited, so it's important to book promptly.

Conference Program

Before you arrive, review the program and highlight the sessions you want to attend. This can even be done while travelling. The conference abstracts are now available and can be accessed here: https://linkly.link/2i2M5. Use these to check that your selected sessions align with your learning goals and areas of interest.

A tip: avoid switching too frequently between concurrent sessions, as timings may not align perfectly and you may miss key content.

DURING THE CONFERENCE

Engage With Intention

- Explore exhibitors that align with your priorities (see Exhibitor Notes page for space to capture insights and key takeaways).
- Attend sessions that link to your challenges or interests
- Ask questions that uncover practical strategies
- Capture key ideas, surprises, or follow-up actions

WORKSHOPS & PRESENTATIONS

During the Session

Use the notes section on the conference App or the book of proceedings and jot down

- What is the key takeaway?
- What challenged or expanded my thinking?
- What questions do I have about implementation?
- What small change could I test next week?
- What evidence or gaps stood out?

NETWORK & PEER LEARNING

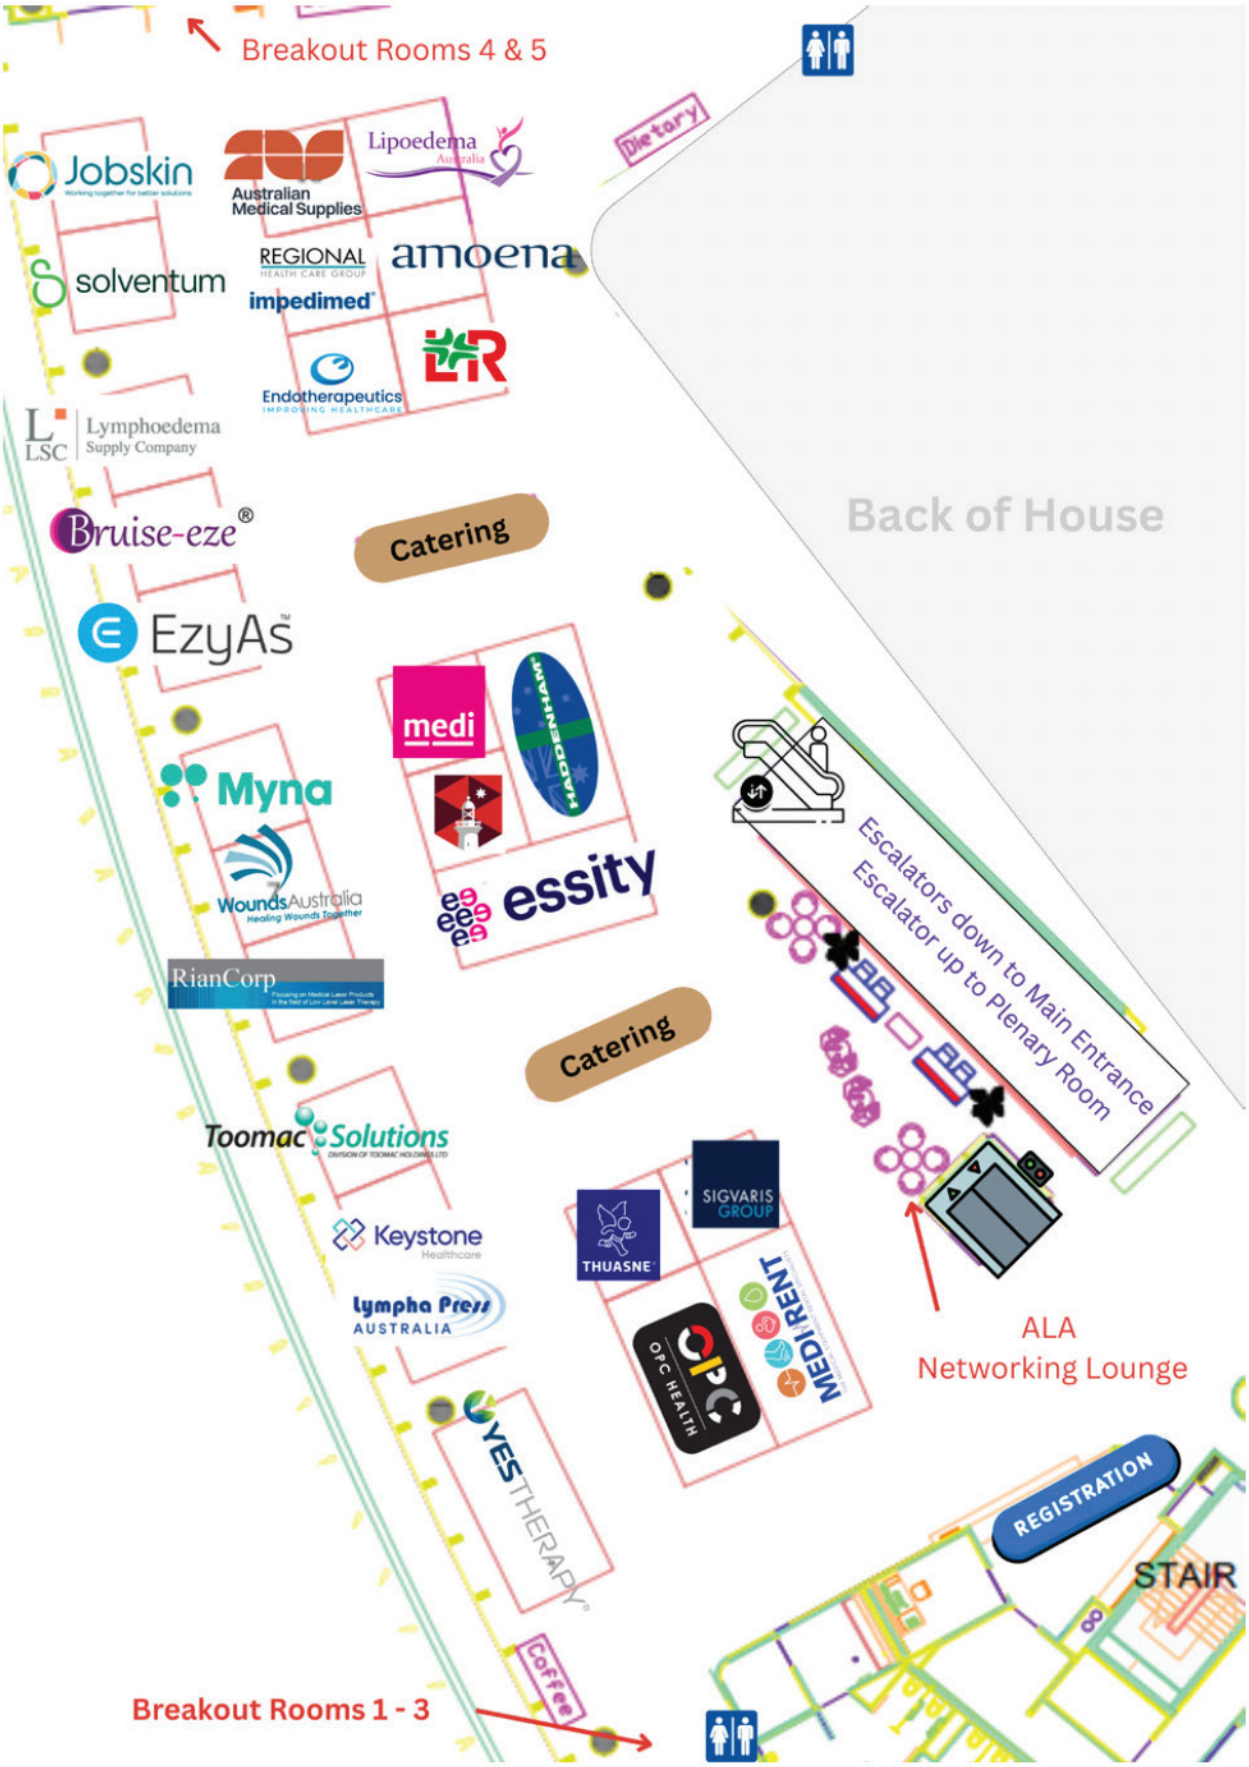

Beforehand

If there are colleagues or peers you want to connect with, arrange meeting times ahead of the conference.
